Partial Opening Of Mill Street Being Studied

Part of Mill Street may be opened to permit additional access to campus, City Manager C. William Norman said Wednesday.

A conference is scheduled for today to determine whether part of the new construction can be opened, Norman said. Otherwise, the project is expected to be completed in about two weeks, weather permitting.

The possible opening of part of Mill will be designed to relieve part of the traffic pressure on access streets to campus, Norman said. One possibility is to open the south lanes on the east end of the street (from University Avenue), to Campus Drive, the city manager continued.

Partial opening might slow work on the project, Norman said. He said the contractor has a considerable amount of equipment on the job, and if the street is opened to traffic, this may interfere with the work.

Another possibility under consideration is to open Mill Street at Forest Avenue, to permit access to campus via Forest, Norman said.

The widening project is being done by Howell & Gilmore, Carbondale contractors.

Winter Advising To End Dec. 17

The last day for advisement for advance registration for the winter quarter will be Dec. 17, according to the Registrar's Office.

The advisement offices will be closed from Dec. 21 until Jan. 2. During this time, the Sectioning Center will also be closed.

The next date that a continuing student may register for the winter quarter, if he missed the advance registration period, will be on Jan. 4. At this time, a late registration fee will be charged.

Registration for all students will end on Jan. 9; this will include adding new courses or changing sections.

Police Report

Five Burglaries

During Vacation

Five trailers and one apartment were burglarized over the Thanksgiving break, students reported to Carbondale police.

An investigation is underway by both Carbondale Police and the SIU Security Office.

Six to Leave For Katmandu Tour of Duty

A team of six SIU men will leave Jan. 2 for a two-month tour of duty in Katmandu, Nepal, a small country at the base of the Himalayan Mountains.

The team, consisting of five students, will be led by John M. Pollock, associate professor in the School of Technology.

The group, which is part of the fulfillment of a contract Southern has with the U.S. government, will be working in five areas. These are agriculture, metal, building trades, wood and electricity.

The students who will be on the team are: James A. Becker, agriculture; Thomas B. Crone, metal; Robert A. Toupal, building trades; Richard H. Walton, wood; and M. Russel Willoughby, electricity.

The SIU contract is for two years and is part of the National Vocational Training Center program.

Resolution Seeks Douglas for Faculty

The Campus Senate Wednesday night adopted a resolution to invite United States Senator Paul H. Douglas to join the SIU faculty.

Commuter Senator Bill Potter said in the resolution that the addition of Douglas to the faculty would "immeasurably increase the academic stature of this University."

Douglas, having served nearly 18 years in the U.S. Senate, was formerly an economist at the University of Chicago.

The Campus Senate plans to refer its recommendation to Robert W. MacVicar, vice president for academic affairs, for consideration.

The Senate approved the appointment of John Nystedt as finance commissioner, a position newly created by student body president Bob Drinan.

Rifle Club to Plan Program for Year

An organizational meeting for a rifle club being formed on campus will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the rifle range on the fourth floor of Old Main. A schedule of meetings and plan of activities for the year will be made at the meeting.

Tentative plans call for weekend recreational shooting open to the public at the range, which is being renovated. Shooting, slated to begin during winter term, will probably be held on Saturday and Sunday afternoons. Weapons will be furnished, but participants will be required to pay for the ammunition. Twenty-four weapons, .22 calibre single shot bolt-action rifles, have been purchased for the program.

Interested persons unable to attend the meeting Monday should leave their names, addresses and phone numbers at the Activities Center in the University Center.

Students Deserve Better Protection

The term, "In Loco Parentis," means, "in place of the parents." At SIU this concept is aimed, supposedly, at the protection of the students of the University.

If this is so, the University is falling in its duty to protect students in regard to the lighting and walking conditions on Wall Street.

Many students who walk on this street at night are taking a chance of being struck by a car and being seriously injured or possibly killed.

Several weeks ago a student was injured when he was hit by a driver who didn't stop.

This, the first case, should be a warning to those responsible, to do something.

The solution is not, obviously, banning students from walking along the street, but rather to improve the existing conditions.

Last year a student was killed on Campus Drive when his motorcycle hit a pedestrian sign at a walkway. Not until an editorial in the Daily Egyptian appeared, offering a solution to prevent further such accidents, was anything done.

The University and the city should take preventive measures now to assure the protection of students walking on Wall St.

Sidewalks and a lighting system should be installed so that the pedestrians will have more protection.

If the University, in fact, is the local parent for the students, it should take the initiative to see that something is done.

This is not to say that the University is liable for the cost or construction of these improvements, but only that it, as local "parent," should investigate the matter further so that something is done before an impossible situation contributes to another injury or a possible death.

University Needs Religion Curriculum

To the editor:

There was a time no more than a century ago, when religion was the primary orientation of the university and the "truth" of Genesis reverberated throughout the classroom, that a young biologist was soundly rebuked when he dared to suggest that our heritage be traced back through the "banana eating" generation.

The generation of teaching evolution was beyond comprehension and it was only after decades of constant advocacy that it finally became an accepted academic discipline of the university.

Today the tables are turned. In this present age of technology, science reigns supreme and religious thought has been reduced to the ranks of irrelevancy and propaganda, unworthy of "credit" in the university.

By constitutional decision, separation of church and state fully implies that neither has the legal authority to interfere or control the other's operation. Although I agree that no state university can ever give its sanction to any kind of religious orthodoxy, it is, nevertheless, at liberty to offer courses in primary religious content and theology and to include such in its curriculum.

However, the question at hand is whether such courses merit consideration, much less credit, as an academic discipline. In the liberal tradition of education, it is the task of the university to expose fully the student to all perspectives of the "truth." To deny specifically religious exposure, is, in essence, an affirmation of "no religion" which is, at its least, a violation of constitutional separation, and in the extreme, a refusal to educate fully.

Because religion has played and continues to play an important part in western civilization, I should think it would merit inclusion in the university curricula, not only as a part of history and sociology, but centrally as primary content courses taught by academically qualified and theologically trained personnel.

Let not the ascent of man be the descent of civilization.

Writer Says Press Is Changing for Better

By Jenkin Lloyd Jones

Not long ago a group of Englishmen, disgusted with the sensationalism of the British popular press, announced plans (or hopes) for a new newspaper.

"Do you want," read their prospectus, "a daily newspaper that puts the emphasis upon the good instead of the evil; the pure instead of the corrupt; the heroic instead of the mean; the generous instead of depravity; upon the stars in the sky instead of the mud in the gutter?"

To which Christopher Driver, writing in the serious and scholarly Manchester Guardian had a short reply:

"No. We want a newspaper which tells what happens."

Both the promoters of the proposed new high-level newspaper and Driver are partly wrong. A good newspaper does, indeed, have an obligation to accentuate the positive, to promote optimism, altruism and improved behavior. It also has an obligation to report tragedy and uncover evil. It must keep one eye cocked on the stars and another on the gutter.

A newspaper has one other obligation, and that is to survive. This may not be classified as a social obligation, or even as a very noble one, but it is real, particularly to proprietors and employees.

Now, what about Driver's insistence on "a newspaper which tells what happens"? He would very quickly amend this as an oversimplification. All kinds of things are happening every day that good newspapers never mention.

Some of these things are informative but dull. It might, for example, be considered a good thing if the average citizen knew more about the workings of the city water department. So a newspaper could print five columns of an involved technical report by the chief water engineer. One out of 10,000 readers might even read it, and so be splendidly informed. But such a newspaper wouldn't survive.

And some things are interesting but in bad taste. Crime, vice and depravity are always with us. In the average city you could completely fill the columns of a daily newspaper with detailed accounts of murders, rapes and slashings, of "human interest" interviews with madams and their girls, of police court testimony and intimate pictures of bloody accidents.

Now, such a newspaper would certainly survive longer than the one that printed the engineer's report. For there are always going to be more human beings interested in being shocked and titillated than in the operation of the city waterworks. But even the all-sensational newspaper would have limited appeal.

For the "mix" is changing. And in America it is changing vastly for the better, if by "better" you mean the ideal set forth by the hopefuls who would like to start the steam-cleaned daily in England. Newspapers of general circulation will never reach their ideal—or at least I hope they don't—for then they would cease to be newspapers. But it is well that our press is moving in that direction.

The mix is changing, first, because people are better educated. Second "hard news," that is news of genuine significance, is now more saleable than it used to be because a steadily widening spectrum of readers is honestly concerned with what is going on in Congress, the Kremlin and outer space.

Still, every editor hears the plaint: "Why isn't your newspaper more like The New York Times or The Christian Science Monitor?" The answer is easy—these are not newspapers of general circulation. These splendidly edited journals appeal to a small stratum of society. They survive only because they enjoy national and worldwide distribution.

In the city zone of New York, The Times has only one purchaser to every 20 inhabitants. The Monitor doesn't even publish its Boston city circulation figures, but in Massachusetts as a whole it has one subscriber to every 240 inhabitants. Such meager ratios would quickly kill the newspaper designed largely for local readership.

So we have comics and advice to the lovelorn and puzzles and movie gossip and pictures of the fireman getting the cat out of the tree. The headon crash and the Chicago stabber and Austin sniper go on page one. They should. They are news.

The exciting thing about American journalism today, however, is that never before has it been so commercially safe to be thoughtful and respectable. The old Hearst formula is dead.

Bonn Crisis Helps Shape Europe's Future

WHAT is happening to the Western alliance? Is NATO breaking up? Is Britain moving closer to the Common Market? Where does de Gaulle now stand?

Overshadowed by the crisis in Asia, the future of Europe is being gradually shaped, not by any conscious design, but by a series of almost fortuitous events. The latest is the Government crisis in Bonn.

The decision of President de Gaulle last February to withdraw French forces from NATO command brought to a head the latent conflict within the Atlantic alliance. The abortive negotiations between France and her 14 NATO partners since then have confirmed that the conflict was not merely over military organization but over basic policies.

Although President de Gaulle still protests that France is loyal to the alliance while merely disapproving of NATO, no one now knows how France would react in any crisis threatening Western Europe.

Since the French Government has refused to explain, the only prudent course for the allies is to assume that France's support cannot be counted upon. This conclusion is symbolised in the decision to move the NATO political headquarters from Paris to Brussels.

At the same time, Britain and the United States have begun talks with Bonn about the future of their troops in West Germany. London wants to cut the British forces there, unless someone will help pay more of their cost in foreign exchange. The Americans want to cut theirs, for balance-of-payments reasons and to have more men for Viet Nam.

not only spoke of a possible reduction of forces on both sides in Europe. He also laid down more clearly the principle that German reunification depends on lowering tension in Europe and on bringing the two sides of the divided continent closer together.

This was a clear hint that a European settlement now has priority in American eyes over Bonn's special political aims. It was followed by President Johnson's meeting with the Soviet Foreign Minister, Mr. Gromyko, at which the Soviet Government appears to have been assured that the United States has now finally abandoned any idea of creating an Atlantic nuclear force in which Germany would share. This has led to increased hopes of Soviet-American agreement on a treaty to stop the spread of nuclear weapons.

THE stage is thus set for a possible advance next year towards new East-West agreements. These might include a non-proliferation treaty and an agreement on the level of forces in Central Europe. Serious study should also begin to the Polish proposals for a 'freeze' on the number of nuclear weapons on both sides of Central Europe.

But these new hopes also bring new problems. For this trend towards a more stable system of European security, which successive British Governments have long advocated, coincides both with the British financial crisis and with renewed interest in this country in joining the Common Market.

The pressure to reduce overseas expenditure threatens to drive Britain into precipitate cuts in her forces in Germany which might be ill-timed from a political point of view.

Again, the British Government may see some difficulty in combining a new approach to the Common Market—for which it would need German support—with pressure for European security agreements which may not be popular in Bonn.

Much will obviously depend on what kind of Government emerges from the present crisis in West Germany. In its approach to Europe, the British Government will in any case have to proceed with tact and care.

The Government must first clarify its own ideas on the economic terms on which we would be ready to enter the Common Market. Mr. Heath has also rightly pointed out that entry into Europe will eventually involve important decisions about defense and foreign policy.

But it would be a great mistake if Britain let her hopes about the Common Market inhibit her encouragement of the present movement towards a reduction of East-West tension in Europe.

It is not only that this movement is of greater importance even than the prospect of entering the Common Market. It is also that it represents the hopes of a majority of the Common Market Europeans themselves, including a growing number of West Germans.

Recent Child Adoptions Illustrate

Law Shouldn't Replace Common Sense

By Paul Simon
(Editor's Service)

Within the last few weeks three items have been in the news regarding adoptions:

1. The United States Supreme Court refused to hear arguments on an Iowa Supreme Court ruling. Mark Painter, a father, had placed his child temporarily with his wife's parents, following her death. Three years later he remarried and the Iowa courts said he could not have his child back because he was an artist living in California. The court ruled that it was better for the child to live with his grandparents and have a "stable, conventional, dependable, mid-western background."

2. In New Jersey the state bureau of children's services is in court because they had decided that children eligible for adoption shall be placed out to parents according to their religious beliefs—the determination to be made by the day of the week on which the child was born. Children born on Monday through Wednesday are placed with Protestants, for example; Thursday through Saturday with Catholics; and Sundays with Jewish parents.

3. In another eastern case a welfare commissioner denied parents the right to adopt a child because they were of Italian background and have dark hair, while the child has light hair. The child had been placed with the parents from one week of age, for more than three years, and admittedly lives in a happy home and is a well-adjusted child. The parents had three children born to them—one of whom also has light hair.

These three examples of ridiculous decisions by courts or government officials illustrate the problems which law-makers face. No new laws could have solved or prevented any of these cases.

I sense that too often people feel that another new law will solve a problem—and sometimes it will. But laws must be general in application and cannot take into account every situation that might arise.

When there are decisions by courts or officials with which we disagree, we should not hesitate to fight them in the courts, and to make our views known.

But all of us must practice some restraint and common sense, and not look to new laws for all our answers.

'Oh, Those Clergymen of Little Faith'

By Arthur Hoppe
(San Francisco Chronicle)

Scene: The Elysian Fields, office of the Chairman of the Board of Trustees. The chairman, an imposing figure despite his rumpled blue serge suit, high clerical collar and gaiters, is seated behind his desk looking unhappily at the mound of paper work.

His executive director, Mr. Gabriel, obviously a young man on his way up, enters, a sheaf of yellow messages in his hand.

The Chairman (with a weary sigh): Now what? Gabriel: Nothing much, sir. Just some more of those prayers from theologians demanding an immediate answer. They want to know if you're still alive.

The Chairman (testily): Oh, those clergymen of little faith. Put in a requisition for a small thunderbolt, Gabriel, and I'll . . .

Gabriel (shaking his head): I'm afraid the House of Angels would never approve such a requisition, sir. You know how they feel about rocking the boat. But perhaps if we could convince one or two key Apostles to bring pressure to bear on the Evangelical Commission to use their influence to . . .

The Chairman: Oh, never mind. But I certainly do miss the good, old days. (musing) You know, Gabriel, I never should have given up my robe, my beard and my sandals.

Gabriel (mildly shocked): But you have to change with the times, sir. The modern church requires modern business methods and modern executives to run it. Surely, sir, you can't expect them to have faith in their executives unless they look the part. But speaking of clothes . . . The Chairman: For the last time, I'm not going to wear a herringbone tweed jacket.

Gabriel: I just thought it would look nice during the Heavenly Host Social Hour, Pot-Luck Supper and Bingo Festival tonight, particularly when you spin the . . .

The Chairman: And for the last time, I'm not going to call out the Bingo numbers.

Gabriel: Well, I'll just tell them you're busy. After all, you do have that conference tomorrow on "The Role of Religion in Warfare."

Let's see, you're the featured breakfast speaker. It shows, sir, that you're still a widely recognized authority on religion. By the way, do you have an advance text?

The Chairman: I don't need one. I plan to stand up, say, "Thou shalt not kill," and sit down.

Gabriel: Good thinking, sir. Brief, dramatic and to the point. And it should stir up spirited debate among the participants.

The Chairman: Debate?

Gabriel: Yes, you know, over when and where such a doctrine should be applied and in what circumstances. (rubbing his hands) I think we can safely schedule at least three panel discussion groups on the subject and perhaps even appoint an interim study committee with an acceptable compromise to report back next year.

The Chairman (wistfully): I don't suppose they could just adopt the doctrine without debate?

Gabriel: You can't expect miracles, sir. Not in the modern church. Which reminds me, (holding up the yellow messages) how do you want me to answer these prayers?

The Chairman (shrugging his shoulders tiredly) I don't know. Tell them what you like.

Gabriel: Why don't I tell them the truth, sir? It's simple, reassuring and I know they'll understand. I'll just tell them you're not dead; you're tied up in committee.

U.N. Diplomats Believe U Thant Will Continue

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The belief mounted among U.N. diplomats Wednesday that U Thant has decided to accept another term as secretary-general, but there was no confirmation from him or any official U.N. source.

"He will stay" was the confident prediction of many close associates of the 57-year-old Burmese, who has been the U.N.'s chief executive for five years. None would add that they knew for sure.

Members of the 15-nation Security Council met informally to draft an appeal acceptable to Thant, who has been under constant pressure to remain on the job ever since he announced on Sept. 1 that he would not offer himself for another term. He agreed later in the month to stay on until the end of the current General Assembly, expected on Dec. 20.

U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg, president of the council for November, was taking a leading role in persuading Thant to remain.

Great Lakes Freighter Sinks

HARBOR BEACH, Mich. (AP)—The freighter Daniel J. Morrell, with a crew of 33 aboard, apparently broke up and sank in storm-lashed Lake Huron Tuesday night, the Coast Guard said Wednesday.

A survivor of the ship was picked up by a Coast Guard helicopter late Wednesday. Seven bodies were recovered.

The Coast Guard identified the survivor as Dennis Hale, 26, of Ashtabula, Ohio.

The Coast Guard said the Morrell began breaking up at 2:30 a.m. Tuesday. Hale had been in the water for about 36 hours. He said he had been on a life raft with several other men, but he did not know what had happened to them.

Hale was found about 10 miles northeast of here, about two miles from where the first body was found.

The Morrell sinking recalled the Great Lakes tragedy of eight years ago when the Carl D. Bradley and 33 crew members went to the bottom of Lake Michigan.

Informants said he drafted an appeal to Thant saying that the present international situation and problems confronting the United Nations require Thant's strong leadership. Goldberg presented the appeal to other council members for their approval.

Thant gave as his reasons for not accepting a new term personal considerations and failure of the warring factions in Viet Nam to heed his pleas to come to the conference table. He cited also inability of the major powers to agree on peacekeeping procedures and come up with voluntary contributions to ease the United Nation's financial problems.

On the financial aspect reliable sources said the United States, the Soviet Union, France and East European nations were considering making simultaneous voluntary contributions as part of the campaign to persuade Thant to remain.

One hitch was described as Soviet insistence that the United States make the largest contribution. The United States objects on the grounds it is not like the others delinquent on peacekeeping assessments.

Jury Rules Speck Is Competent

CHICAGO (AP) — A Circuit Court jury decided Wednesday that Richard Speck is mentally competent to stand trial on charges of murdering eight student nurses.

The action came after the jurors had heard two days of testimony by seven medical scientists, who agreed that the 24-year-old defendant understands the nature of the charges against him and is able to cooperate with his attorneys.

Johnson May Swap Tax Hike For Released Credit Restrictions

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson's decision on a tax increase may depend, not only on Viet Nam war costs, but on whether the Federal Reserve Board promises easier money to credit-hungry business, congressional sources said Wednesday.

"I can't imagine the President asking for a tax hike without a firm understanding with the 'Fed,'" said one source close to both executive and congressional tax planners. He asked not to have the comment attributed to him.

One major employment-creating industry, housing, is in recession while the economy generally continues to flourish. Many observers attribute the sag in new housing starts to mounting interest rates and keen competition for money since the Federal Reserve raised the discount rate and the rates allowed on banks' time deposits almost a year ago.

These actions tended to shrink the credit money supply.

If a tax increase turns out to have too chilling an effect on the economy, easier money—particularly for the housing industry—could serve as an off-setting stimulus.

Whatever the decision on a general tax increase may be, the congressional outlook is for passage of an increase in Social Security benefits and taxes such as Johnson recommended. The effect of such an increase on the inflation-deflation balance is considered neutral.

The higher payroll tax, especially if it comes on top of a boost in individual and corporate income tax, might tend to cool the economy. But the increased flow to pensioners of ready spending money, would, planners think cancel this effect.

The reduction or postponement of $5.3 billion in federal programs, including $3 billion in savings between now and July 1, which Johnson announced in general terms Tuesday, is expected to check the expansion of administration undertakings rather than drastically cut back any.

"I wouldn't say the Great Society is in the deep freeze," one source put it. "I would say this is to be a holding operation."

the banking business—slow or go?

Here's what Fortune says:

"Few areas of endeavor today are more dynamic, more swiftly paced, or more surrounded by hazard and opportunity than commercial banking. Increasing competition for deposits, new credit instruments, new lending techniques, new investment, trust and pension fund activities and new computer-oriented services are likely to change the traditional relationships of many business firms with their banks in the next few years."

Ludwig Erhard Resigns As German Chancellor

BONN, Germany (AP)—Chancellor Ludwig Erhard quit Wednesday after three years in office, clearing the way for Kurt Georg Kiesinger to replace him today.

President Heinrich Lübke's office confirmed it had received Erhard's resignation. Kiesinger also announced that his Christian Democratic Party had overwhelmingly approved the new "grand coalition" Cabinet, which will bring the Social Democrats into the government for the first time.

The election of Kiesinger as chancellor is scheduled in the lower House of Parliament Thursday.

West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt, head of the Social Democrats, is to be vice chancellor and foreign minister.

After another delay prolonging the month-old crisis another day, negotiators of the country's two major parties agreed early today on a Cabinet for ratification by party members in the Bundestag.

Troops Cautious Of Holiday Truce

CHICAGO (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk said Wednesday U.S. military forces in Viet Nam, remembering last year, will be cautious about the Holiday truce and be ready for shooting.

"Everybody remembers last year and the violations of the truce by the other side," Rusk told newsmen. "We will have to watch ourselves and keep ourselves in a position to shoot back."

Rusk spoke with reporters at O'Hare International Airport on arrival in Chicago for two private meetings.

Asked whether the holiday truce agreement might be a stepping stone toward negotiations for peace, Rusk replied: "We have not seen any basis for that."

Asked about some forecasts that the Viet Nam war could run on for 3 to 10 years, Rusk replied:

"As long as they keep coming from the north we'll be there to meet them."

Friendly Viet Nam Village Shelled Accidentally by Yanks; 3 Killed

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A U.S. artillery battery killed three Vietnamese villagers and wounded 14 Wednesday in a mistaken shelling of a friendly community, Tan Uyen, that just five months ago was bombed accidentally by a U.S. Air Force F100 Super Sabre Jet.

Tan Uyen is on a bend of the Dong Nai River just north of the Bien Hoa airbase. A canister of antipersonnel bombs exploded in the market place there July 1, killing five Vietnamese and wounding 43. Investigators said it was a delayed drop in the jet-tisoning of unused explosives upstream by a Super Sabre returning to Bien Hoa after a strike mission.

A dispatch from Dong Ha, headquarters of U.S. Marines and South Vietnamese troops guarding the northern border against infiltrating Hanoi regulars, reported American antiaircraft guns have now been set up just 10 miles south of the demilitarized zone.

Concern over the possibility North Viet Nam might try to send its warplanes across the border led to the basing of the 1st Battalion, 44th Artillery at Dong Ha. It uses machine guns mounted on the backs of trucks and cannon and machine guns carried by tracked vehicles.

Stormy weather again held down U.S. air raids on North Viet Nam.

In other action Vietnamese headquarters reported the murder of four civilians in a Communist prison camp from which government troops freed 14 others long in chains. The soldiers found the bodies of two men and two women who, survivors said, had been shot by the Viet Cong a short time before. One of the survivors died of wounds after being liberated.

The sharpest of scattered contacts on generally quiet war sectors was a 20-minute fight 32 miles northeast of Saigon. Five Americans of the 1st Infantry Division took on a file of 80 Viet Cong troops after a snapping twig betrayed the patrol's position.

A U.S. spokesman said the patrol and supporting aircraft killed 46 of the enemy and "no friendly casualties were reported." The Americans returned by helicopter to their base at Di An without a scratch.

Nine U.S. 105mm shells exploded at Tan Uyen, 20 miles northeast of Saigon.

Quint Falters; Chances Slim

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Roni Sue, the only surviving Aranson quintuplet, stopped breathing several times Wednesday and her already fragile grasp on life weakened sharply.

"Her chances," a hospital spokesman said, "are worse."

The respiratory problem threatening the 4-day-old girl was similar to that which took the lives of her four sisters within 56 hours after their birth Saturday.

The quints were born 2 1/2 months prematurely to Mr. and Mrs. Michael Aranson, each 22. The tiny lungs of the four dead babies were not well-enough developed to breathe.

"Roni Sue had some difficulty during the night which alters the outlook for her," the infant's pediatrician, Dr. Lee Bass, announced late in the morning.

"She had some episodes of apnea (cessation of breathing) and had to be stimulated to breathe," the doctor said. "This kind of spell makes the outlook quite different."

Roni Sue also was suffering from jaundice, a yellowing of the skin symptomatic of the system's inability to properly cleanse the blood. The ailment can cause brain damage.

Annual Scholarship

David L. Elias, a senior from Carbondale majoring in engineering technology, has received the $400 Western Electric Scholarship.

The annual scholarship, which is awarded as part of the Western Electric Fund program, also provides for a separate grant-in-aid for a third of the value of the scholarship.

To be eligible, students must be upperclassmen enrolled in technology or business administration programs. They must also have a 4.0 overall average and demonstrate financial need, according to Fred Dakak, coordinator of Student Work and Financial Assistance.

The winner of the grant-in-aid is Barbara A. Kovera, a junior from Calumet City, Ill., majoring in mathematics. Miss Kovera has a 4.732 average and Elias a 4.525 average.

Blood Bank Drive Has Few Donors

The drive for SIU blood donors is progressing rather slowly, according to Mrs. Ralph Bedwell, chairman.

Since Nov. 16, only one undergraduate, two graduate students and four members of the staff have volunteered for the "walking blood bank" program.

Of these, only five were acceptable as blood donors.

Members of the Carbondale Presbyterian Church have made arrangements for their members to be examined as possible donors Monday.

Other groups who wish to be typed for the "bank" should contact Mrs. Bedwell at 7-4662.

The objective is to have a known supply of donors available for emergencies.

Patterson Services Planned for Friday

Funeral services for Mrs. Irene Patterson, 73, of 213 Travelstead Lane, will be held at 2 p.m. Friday at Huffman Funeral Home.

Mrs. Patterson, who died Tuesday night, was the widow of Sam Patterson, athlete and coach at SIU, who died in 1958.

The Rev. Edward L. Hoffman, pastor of Carbondale First Methodist Church, will officiate. Burial will be in Oakland Cemetery.

Board Sponsors Bus

To St. Louis Saturday

The Activities Programming Board will sponsor a bus to St. Louis on Saturday.

The bus will leave the east entrance of the University Center at 8 a.m. and return about 5 p.m.

Cost for the trip is $1.50. Interested students must sign up in the Activities Office before noon Friday.

Wood has been on the SIU faculty since 1949 after teaching vocational agriculture briefly in the Newton and Bridgeport high schools. He taught vocational agriculture in University School for 10 years before transferring to the School of Agriculture where he became superintendent of the University Farms and teacher of vocational agriculture education courses.

He has been spending all his time on teaching and research since mid-1965 when a full-time supervisor of the school's experimental and test farms was named.

Wood is a graduate of the University of Illinois and obtained his master's degree in vocational agriculture there in 1949. He received his doctorate in education from the University of Missouri in 1958. In his new assignment he will devote half time to administrative duties and the rest to teaching and research in agricultural education.

This educational team is in Viet Nam to "provide assistance to the Department of National Education, Government of Viet Nam, in the development of preservice and in-service programs for elementary school teachers."

Since 1961, a total of 16 persons have served in the project and operations have begun in schools located in Saigon, Ban Me Thuot, Vinh Long and at the Qui Nhon Normal School.

Saluki Specials Scheduling Slated At End of Term

A Saluki Special will be scheduled at the end of the quarter for the Christmas vacation, according to a spokesman for the Illinois Central Railroad.

Time and date have not been determined yet.

The spokesman said more than 5,000 SIU students rode the Illinois Central Railroad over a four-day period last week.

This was a 55 per cent increase over the number of students who traveled by railroad over the Thanksgiving break last year, he said.

Railroad-U.S. 51 Footbridge Awaiting Contractor's Nod

Beginning of construction on the U.S. 51 overpass is "more or less up to the contractor," according to John F. Loneragan, associate University architect.

Loneragan said the contractor, Simons Construction Co. of Decatur, is now drawing up plans and negotiating with railroad and highway officials. Loneragan said he could not predict what date construction will begin.

The overpass will cross U.S. 51 and the Illinois Central tracks and link the University Park complex with the area near McAndrew Stadium, the eventual location of the Administration Building.

Loneragan said some work on the project has been done by the contractor, including surveying and boring into the soil to determine the depth of footings.

Presently the contractor is meeting with the company which will supply the precast concrete for the job to agree on specifications and is making "shop drawings" which will be used for guidance in construction, Loneragan said. Negotiations are being con-

Delay Signings

Rule Change for Collegians Proposed by Minor Leagues

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—College players would not be eligible to sign professional baseball contracts the four full years they are in school under a proposed rule change approved by the minor leagues Wednesday.

The present rule permits them to sign after two years.

Phillip Piton, president of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, said members gave unanimous approval to the change which has been called for repeatedly by the nation's colleges.

It will be presented for consideration by the major leagues at their meeting later this week in Pittsburgh, Piton said.

Under the change, players could not be signed while in college except under two conditions—that they become 21 years of age or drop out of school for at least 120 consecutive days.

These conditions are in the present rules.

Eliminated from present rules would be the practice of permitting players to sign during summer vacations after the end of their sophomore year. "This will give four full years of protection," Piton said.

The minor leagues president said the proposal was among 19 which were approved unanimously and sent on to Pittsburgh.

The other 18 were of a technical nature and had to do with operating procedures, Piton said.

Members acted at the closing session of the minor leagues' three-day annual meeting, which Piton said guaranteed the minors will be as strong this year as they were last year.

"All of our leagues were taken care of. We'll have 16 again next year. You might say we didn't progress, but neither did we regress," he said.

Rick Barry Leads NBA in Scoring

NEW YORK (AP) — Rick Barry, San Francisco's super sophomore, heads the class with his scoring but his coach also gives him passing marks for his passing.

The Miami of Florida graduate leads the National Basketball Association in scoring at better than 38 points a game, and also led the Warriors in assists last week with 25.

"Rick is the finest passing forward in the NBA today," said Coach Bill Sharman.

"Rick doesn't have to convince his teammates that they will get the ball from him when they are free. Our playing statistics show that Rick hits the open man time and time again."

Although Barry lets fly for the basket an average of 27 times a game and shoots an average of 12 free throws a game, he ranks eighth in the league in assists with 96, or 4.4 a contest, and second on the Warriors squad.

NFL Announces League Realignment

By Jack Hand

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Atlanta was placed in the Western Conference and New Orleans, the new entry, in the Eastern Conference for the next two years in the realignment of the National Football League announced Wednesday by Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

The two conferences were divided into two sections each, with four teams in each section.

Here's the way they will line up:

Western Conference

First section—Detroit, Chicago, Green Bay and Minnesota.

Second section—Los Angeles, San Francisco, Baltimore and Atlanta.

The western sections will maintain those two groupings for 1967 and 1968.

The Eastern Conference will have one line-up for 1967 and another for 1968.

Here's the Eastern line-up for 1967:

First section—Cleveland, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, New York.

Second section—Philadelphia, Washington, Dallas, New Orleans.

For 1968 the Eastern Conference will line up this way:

First section—Cleveland, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, New Orleans.

Second section—Philadelphia, Washington, Dallas, New York.

Rozelle said the switch of New York and New Orleans for 1967 and 1968 was because the other Eastern teams all wanted to schedule New York. The Giants have had long rivalries with these teams and in addition the Giants are assured of a sell-out in advance for every home game.

Season Tickets Will Remain On Sale Through Monday

Season tickets for SIU basketball games are now on sale at the Arena ticket office. Persons who have purchased either a joint fall-winter athletic pass or have a fall pass and wish to buy a winter pass for $3.50 may purchase season tickets for an additional two dollars.

The season books will remain on sale through Monday. Tickets will be sold on an individual basis only after Monday. All seats will be reserved this year.

Individual tickets will go on sale two days prior to all games and the ticket office will also remain open from 8 a.m. at 12 noon on Saturdays when there is a game that night.

Individual tickets will cost 50 cents. Students must present a paid up winter fee statement in order to buy winter athletic passes. To purchase individual tickets students must present either fall or winter fee statements.

Tickets for Monday's game against State College of Iowa will be sold today, Friday and Monday.

Gymnastics Season Opens This Weekend

SIU's 1966-67 men's gymnastics team, which Coach Bill Meade says will be the best in the university's history, will open its season Friday and Saturday in the Midwest Open at Chicago.

The Salukis are the defending NCAA national champions, and this year's squad includes 11 returning lettermen from the 1965-66 squad.

Returning lettermen are Mike Boegler, Fred Dennis, Hutch Dvorak, Dale Hardy, Ron Harstad, Larry Lindauer, Jack Hultz, Paul Mayer, Joe Polizzano, Rick Tucker and Steve Whitlock.

SIU's NCAA victory in 1966 was the second time in three years the Salukis have won the national title. The other championship was won in 1964.

Although the Midwest Open is the first official meet of the season, the gymnasts recently held their annual intrasquad meet which the varsity won with 191 points. Meade said he was pleased with this because he thinks 184 points is enough to win most meets.

Illinois Invitational Starts Season

Wrestlers Compete at Champaign

Coach Jim Wilkinson will enter 19 men in this meet which will attract wrestlers from 11 colleges and universities in Illinois.

"Last season we were at mid-season form when we wrestled in this meet, but this year we are just at the beginning of getting in shape for the season," Wilkinson said.

"We haven't been able to go at full speed as yet because of injuries."

Wilkinson expects that Northwestern, Illinois State and the University of Illinois will have greatly improved teams and that SIU won't be able to dominate the meet as it did last year.

After this invitational meet the Salukis will have a week to prepare for their first home meet of the year. They will take on Bloomsburg University Dec. 9 in the Arena.

The Saluki wrestling team heads north Friday to compete in the Illinois Invitational Saturday at the University of Illinois in Champaign.

Last season the Saluki matmen dominated the meet, winning nine of the 11 weight classes and won 45 individual matches while losing only five. No team title is awarded.

Of the nine men who won divisions last year, six are back with the Saluki varsity this season. Terry Magoon won the 115-pound class, Don Ross captured the 130-pound division, Al Lipper won the 152-pound class, Aaron Bulow won the 177-pound class, Al Bulow won the 191-pound division and Bob Roop was the victor in the heavyweight class.

In addition, Buck Deadrich took second to Roop in the heavyweight division and Steve Sarossy was second behind Magoon in the 115-pound class.

George McCreery, who played out his final year of eligibility last year, won the 160-pound division for the Salukis and Don Schneider, last year's captain who is now in the Army, won the 137-pound class.

Plans to Charter Train To St. Louis Cancelled

The proposed Illinois Central special train to the SIU-St. Louis University basketball game Wednesday has been cancelled according to the Athletic Department.

The Department had announced early that an attempt would be made to secure a train provided 400 round trip tickets could be sold at $6.50. According to the Athletic Department this quota was not reached, necessitating cancellation of plans for the train.

The Arena ticket office received 500 tickets for the St. Louis game. Tickets may be purchased by students who present their fee statement for one dollar, $1.50 and $2.50.

They will be on sale through Monday. The Edwardsville campus also received tickets for the game.

The game will start at 8:30 p.m. and will be played in Kiel Auditorium.

Denver's Bramlett Chosen Outstanding Defender of Week

NEW YORK (AP) - John Bull Bramlett's long run after a blocked field goal attempt enabled Denver to upset favor-day and earned him The Associated Press nomination as Defensive Player of the Week in the AFL.

San Diego was ahead 10-6 in the final period when Dick Van Raaphorst attempted a field goal. Bramlett shot between center and guard and blocked the kick.

Bramlett scooped up the ball and loped 86 yards to the touchdown. The run originally was tagged as a 72-yard run but was changed to 86 yards under new rules that make such plays measured from the kicking point, not the line of scrimmage.
